NEW QUESTION 57

An organization requests that a junior project manager, with no previous experience or training in the industry, take over a complex program component. The program component involves senior subject matter experts and has dependencies with other large projects to deliver key benefits to the organization.

How should the junior project manager respond to this request?

- * Accept the assignment, identify the skill gaps, and request training.
- * Reject the assignment, because of the ethical requirement not to accept work for which the project manager is not qualified.
- * Accept the assignment as a challenge and an opportunity to acquire new skills and seek advice from a senior project manager.
- * Reject the assignment because of fear of failure and resulting negative career impact.

NEW QUESTION 58

You are the program manager for your organization and you are dealing with your program stakeholders. You are explaining to them, along with your program team, how certain activities in the program may cause delays in the schedule if the associated risk events come into play. The cost of impact of the risk events are minimal, but the schedule impacts could be bigger. The stakeholders are concerned about delaying the schedule beyond a given due date for the program. They would like you to determine if it is possible to add more labor, use a higher grade of material, or hire some consultants to ensure the risks do not occur in the program. They are not much concerned about the cost of the solution as long as the solution or identified risks do not delay the program completion. What type of risk response are your program stakeholders recommending in this situation?

- * Avoidance
- * Mitigation
- * Transference
- * Workaround
